

CALHOUN WILL BE TRIED AGAIN; CASE OPENS MONDAY

Bitterly Fought New Trial Motion—Bias Charged to Lawlor and that Heney Was Legal Prosecutor

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Judge Lawlor today set next Monday, June 28, for the opening of the second trial of Patrick Calhoun. The defense announced that it would produce affidavits to support the allegations that Judge Lawlor is biased and that Heney was never legally appointed prosecutor. It is probable that there will be considerable delay before work of getting another jury begins. Judge Lawlor said he did not think it advisable for the formation of a jury while the city was going through a political campaign. The district attorney's representatives made no comment on the court's remarks, and is apparently determined to proceed with the case. The case will be one of charging offer to bribe to ex-Supervisor John J. Furey.

Defense Opposed New Trial
SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Making good his declaration that he is ready to begin a second trial of Patrick Calhoun for alleged bribery of a San Francisco supervisor, Special Prosecutor Heney today presented a motion asking the case to be called tomorrow. The motion was bitterly opposed by the defense. Most of the day, before Judge Lawlor, was taken up with arguments on both sides. Charging Judge Lawlor with bias, and that Francis J. Heney had never been legally appointed in San Francisco as prosecuting attorney, A. A. Moore, attorney for the defense, demanded sufficient time in which to be given a ruling. Moore alleged that Lawlor had demonstrated that he could not give the defendant a fair trial.

Heney declared that Moore's only purpose in making such charges was that the court might become angry at the insults, as any man would, and let fall a remark that might be twisted and turned until it was made

ALL SIGNED THE PROTEST

Property Owners on South Main Voice Opposition to Proposed Work

When the city trustees meet tonight they will have before them a protest from every interested property owner on South Main street who could be reached. The protest is against the placing of a gutter on the street from Bishop street to the city limits. The property owners meet Friday evening, and on legal advice worded the protest and signed it, and it is now filed with the city clerk.

The protest says: "We, the undersigned owners of land fronting upon South Main street, south of the paved portion of said street, respectfully object and protest to the putting down of a curbing or gutter on that portion of said street upon which our lands front, and in that connection would represent and show that the same would not be advantageous to our properties or the city at large while the street is in an unpaved condition, and when the street is put to grade and paved, it is more than likely that the said gutter would have to be torn out and replaced, causing additional expense; and in the chaotic condition of the law at the present, owing to the recent amendments of the statute by the last legislature, we deem it inadvisable at this time to undertake street improvements of any kind until some decision has been rendered showing the present condition of the law relating to street improvements."

This protest is signed by Stephen to appear that the court was prejudiced.

Calhoun Jury Disagrees
SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—The "Call," owned by John D. Spreckles, was the only paper to comment editorially this morning on the disagreement of the Calhoun jury, which stood ten to two for Calhoun's acquittal. The Call said in part: "The simple moral of the Calhoun trial and its outcome is, that the wicked rich man has a better chance of getting into the kingdom of heaven than an outraged public has of getting him into jail. The fabric of the law gives way under the weight of millions. The penal code was not built to head against the pressure of the plutocrat, especially when his crime is committed upon the public. 'The defendant takes nothing better from a six months' battle than an inconclusive charge of a hung jury. He can be tried again, and he ought to be, and probably will be, on some of the charges still pending against him. The defendant's case was not a case at all, so far as testimony went. He relied wholly upon technical flaws. In characteristic fulmination, Calhoun expressed his disappointment over the result of the trial, then flatly charges that the Assistant District Attorney Heney was bribed. The public will know how much weight and credence is to be given such a charge from such a man."

The Call then referred to Calhoun's charge that criminals are in control of the District Attorney's office, and says:

"Plainly, the thought behind this utterance is that Calhoun does not want to face another jury with a prosecutor pledged to do his whole duty. He has had enough of Heney. In effect, he asks the people to keep Heney out of the district attorney's office."

BOARD FINDS UNOFFICIAL RETURNS RIGHT

Delhi Drainage District is Now An Established Legal Body

VEGELEY ELECTED TO COUNTY EXPERT JOB

Four Supervisors Present Gave Their Votes to Successful Applicant

This afternoon the Board of Supervisors today made its official count of the returns of the election held last Tuesday when it was voted 37 to 12 to form the Delhi Drainage District. There was no change in the unofficial returns. D. J. Boyd, A. T. Armstrong and Jacob Manderscheid were declared the directors elected. Tomorrow the directors will meet at the office of Attorney R. Y. Williams and perfect organization as a board by the election of officers.

When the returns came up this morning it was found that one return sheet did not show the tally marks, though the results were there. District Attorney Davis ruled that the supervisors were concerned with the results only.

The Board of Supervisors this morning received a communication from Superior Judge Z. B. West in regard to the necessity of establishing a detention home for the juvenile cases that arise in Orange county. As was reported in the Register Saturday, the new juvenile court law prohibits the confinement of a boy or girl under 16 years in any jail, or any room in any way connected with a jail. Orange county has no place in which to hold its delinquent children pending trial.

The supervisors named Supervisor H. E. Smith as a committeeman of the board to confer with Judge West and see what could and what should be done. Judge West's communication to the supervisors follows:

"Permit me to call your attention to the provisions of an act of the legislature of this state, approved March 8, usually known as the juvenile court act. It provides for some place where offenders can be kept for such time as may be necessary, and which shall not be in any penal institution.

"Please see the latter portions of sections 4 and 9, the central portions of section 20, and sections 24 and 25.

"All of which is respectfully submitted,

"Z. B. WEST."

GOULD WOULD NOT GO ON THE STAND

Rests Defense Case and Mrs. Gould's Attorneys Begin With Evidence

NEW YORK, June 21.—Announcing that Howard Gould would not go on the stand in his own defense to his wife's suit for separate maintenance, Attorney Nicholl notified Attorney Shearn, representing his wife, that he would rest the case. Nicholl explained to the court that he deemed the testimony already recorded so complete that it was unnecessary to take further time by bringing defendant to the stand. The action was a surprise to the prosecution.

Attorney Shearn began the rebuttal by an affidavit from Mrs. Alice Stickney Bankhead, swearing she never saw the plaintiff under the influence of liquor and that her conduct was always ladylike. Mrs. Bankhead is the wife of Lieutenant Bankhead, of the United States army, now stationed at Georgia. She was frequently with the Goulds and had an opportunity to observe Mrs. Gould's habits at the home.

LAST RAIL IS NOW IN PLACE

Santa Ana and Huntington Beach Connected by Railroad

The last rail of the electric road connecting Santa Ana and Huntington Beach was laid this morning. A steam engine that came from the Huntington Beach end passed over the Santa Ana river this morning and approached almost to the sugar factory on South Main street. There was no reason why it could not have come all the way into Santa Ana if its business had called it here.

The couple frequently quarreled. The first shot went wild. The wife is under arrest.

RUMOR SAYS THAT HARRIMAN IS DEAD

Report is Not Confirmed—A Break in the Market Followed the Rumor

NEW YORK, June 21.—An unfounded rumor that E. H. Harriman died today in Austria, created great excitement in Wall street. The origin of the rumor has not been traced. Harriman is supposed to be at Vienna, but no word has been received from there.

A sharp break in the market followed the report. The directors of the Union Pacific have not received any information indicating that there is any truth in the rumor.

The fact that none of his friends have received any word of his death tends toward discrediting the rumor. There is a growing belief that the report was circulated to affect the market.

KNOW SIGELS IN NEW YORK—ELSIE WAS GOOD

Suspected Chinamen Traced to a Washington Boarding House

NEW YORK, June 21.—Messages received from the police near New Amsterdam, N. Y., say that Chung Sing, the roommate of Leon Ling, the supposed murderer of Elsie Sigel, was arrested there today. Sing admitted his identity, but refused any further information. City detectives departed to bring the man here.

WOMAN MAY FURNISH CLEW IN SIGEL CASE

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A mysterious woman, whose name is Mrs. Mann, a trained nurse, may furnish a clew to aid the detectives who are searching for Leon Ling, suspected of the murder of Elsie Sigel. In their efforts to trace Ling's supposed accomplice Chung Sing, the officers followed a lead that brought them to this city. The suspects were traced to a house where Mrs. Mann is staying. They called upon Mrs. Mann, and all left immediately.

The landlady said Mrs. K. L. Mann took her meals at the Y.M.C.A., and that shortly after her arrival at her house, two Chinese answering the suspects' descriptions, called on her. She gave an accurate description of them to the police.

PROF. FOULET HAS COOLED OFF NOW

Thinks President Jordan Did Not Mean Any Insult to France

BERKELEY, June 21.—Professor Lucien Foulet, who gained publicity by resenting the allegation of President David Starr Jordan of Stanford University, that France is a decadent nation, arrived here today to take up his duties as professor of romantic language at the state university. Foulet was loth to reopen the discussion and said he was inclined to think the mistake arose from over an unfortunate choice of words by President Jordan.

"When he said the French were degenerate," said Foulet, "I, as well as the audience, thought he referred to the nation. It seems, however, he was referring to the small stature of the soldiers in the French army. Doctor Jordan should have explained his meaning of the term before he used it."

izes that the business of school is that he may gain victory.

"He learns languages. He masters history, and great men step out of the past and he knows them. These conquests bring him pleasure.

"Go with me up the canyon on the side of Mt. San Antonio. We wind past an old lime kiln, and we see beautiful trees, but we do not stop. We climb out of the canyon on a trail over the cliff, and finally we get to the top of the mountain, and there is opened up for us a wonderful vista. We are no longer hedged in by the trees and canyon. We are up where we can look out, where we have a broader view that climbing and conquest brought to us.

"School tasks are meant to bring you to a point where you may look out on all the larger doings of men.

Conquest of Self

"There is another important conquest—the conquest of self.

"Here in our land we see the oranges and walnuts beside cactus. Nature is lavish with her gifts, but man must take them if he would enjoy them. Man conquers nature. The sea defies him to embark upon its stormy waters, but man says, 'I will.' The mountain says, 'you dare not,' but man conquers. The hot sands choke him till he is black in the face, but puny man looks the giant in the face and says: 'I dare; I will.

"But when man comes to conquer himself he has no small task. It is not enough to have trained, but the school must send out those who are masters of themselves. You know that in athletic games, when one becomes angry, or rattled, as we say, he becomes useless. We have seen little fellows fight against big teams. In that game we see spirit, the use of brains and wit—that is self-mastery.

"I think of Demosthenes, who conquered his infirmities, and Bishop McIntyre, who rose to the mastery of men, and Roosevelt, who was a sickly child, but who went ahead in spite of his ailments and developed into a strong man.

"I plead for men who do their own thinking, who go not like sheep jumping over an imaginary rail.

Mastery of Others

"Education means the mastery of tasks and of self and of others.

"It is time we American people were learning other conquests than those of force for aggrandizement of individuals. I plead for the ideal of service. We must have it. This nation cannot long endure without a citizenship that will give service. By service only will power be gained by one seeking to be of benefit to this generation and generations to come. Search the pages of history and you will find very little about the rich men, but the world will never forget the men who have served and will always be proud of those who conquered others by the service of love.

"The chief example of these conquerors is Jesus Christ, who came out of the trial chamber to have a

The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulae, he is confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the creative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great, blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—this medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. DOLLIVER'S WIT LIGHTENS TEDIOUS TARIFF DEBATES

Difficulties In Way of Arrangements In Way of President Taft's Trip To Pacific Coast

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Senator Dolliver's marked ability as a debater has long been known, but it was never brought into greater prominence than in the present tariff debate.

Under the charm of his eloquence and his ready humor of repartee, his discussion of the dryest subjects is made entertaining. The bright flashes of wit with which he illuminates his discourse are enjoyed as much by those against whom they are leveled as by his fellow insurgents.

Possessed of a strong, resonant voice and a robust physique, Dolliver's gulps and cranks, as well as his solid arguments in favor of lower duties in the cotton and woolen schedules, sounded in every corner of the Senate chamber so that none could escape them. It was not that they fell on deaf ears that his efforts met with defeat. The organization of the Senate was against him.

For hours at a time during the debate on these subjects Dolliver held the floor and the attention of the Senate, never seeming to tire.

Most of his speech—or speeches—was delivered without notes and with a liberal display of samples to illustrate his remarks. In this way his oratory had added effectiveness. Frequently interrupted, he was never at a loss for an answer. Hisadroitness in this respect was a constant source of interest, amusement and admiration to his colleagues.

When told that "common reason" would prevent importers from paying freight on the burs, and chaff and straw, which, he said, a sheep accumulated during "his earthly pilgrimage," Dolliver retorted: "Common reason, sailing on the high seas of this tariff debate, has been shipwrecked, and sunk to the bottom."

Describing some absurdities of the tariff as construed by the customs authorities, he said that corn plasters, because partly made of wool, had been held dutiable under the provisions covering wearing apparel. "Do you believe," he inquired solemnly, "that a corn plaster ought to be classified under the tariff laws of a modern nation as wearing apparel?"

Talking of cotton cloth bearing polka dots of goat hair glued upon the fabric, he was interrupted by the question: "Does the senator think that if a poker game is indulged in with camel's hair the hair should come in free?"

Quick as a flash Dolliver responded: "I hope the senator will not introduce mysterious figures of speech which I am not familiar with."

Speaking of the apparent sacredness of the schedules as reported by the finance committee, and referring to the fact that Senator Du Pont of Delaware, had invaded them by securing an amendment raising the tariff on potatoes from 25 cents to 45 cents per bushel, which everybody expects to be stricken out later, Dolliver said: "I am afraid there will be a good many heartburnings when this comedy is over. I do not want to be around near the seat of my honored friend from Delaware when his potatoes, with tears in their eyes, going out of the bill, meet the stockings of the senator from Pennsylvania (Penrose) coming in."

Dolliver referred to Senator Warren (Wyoming) as the "greatest shepherd since Abraham," and when Warren replied that he did not own a single sheep or other live stock except one horse, the Iowa replied:

"I have been deceived about the matter. When the senator took me over that territory, he had all the airs of ownership, and afforded all those delicate hospitalities that could not have arisen in the heart of a mere renter. He not only exhibited to me these pastures and these flocks, but he confided to me much fine philosophy of life both of men and sheep. I remember he told me there was one peculiarity about sheep. He said a sheep does not seem to care particularly whether it lives or dies."

Plans for President Taft's transcontinental trip are being made by a number of government officials in and out of the White House. Until congress passes the bill appropriating $25,000 for the executive's traveling expenses for the first fiscal year, however, these plans will be only of a tentative nature; indeed it may be said that until the lawmakers "come across" with the money, the President will not even admit that he will make the trip at all.

"I'm not going to pay my own expenses out there, that is certain," he repeats, and even the congressmen who are planning to vote against the bill whenever it makes its appearance, say they do not blame him for taking that stand. He believes the people of the country will be the gainers by his journey and he sees no valid reason why he should foot the travel bill personally.

Even should the $25,000 appropriation be made for Mr. Taft, he may not take the journey. Mrs. Taft has been looking forward to the western tour with a great deal of pleasure and the President declares that if she cannot share in the excursion, he will not go himself, even if he were assured that she stood in no danger of a return of her present nervous trouble during his absence. She is now rapidly recovering from the recent attack, however, and her physician, Naval Surgeon De Laney, is confident that by the time the President expects to leave Beverly, Mass., for the West, she will have been restored to perfect health.

If the President goes West he will establish a record for economical traveling that has never been approached by any occupant of the White House since the days of our great grandfathers, when private cars and special trains were unknown. He will make the trip with his eye on the expense account all the way, and will not have a special train. In fact, if he could proceed from here to the coast and back again in half comfort, he would not even go to the extravagance of chartering a private car, but would wire ahead for "a lower berth away from the wheels" at every step of the journey. His advisers have persuaded him, however, to forsake his old friend Democratic Simplicity for a few weeks and put on enough plutocratic style to hire a car. This will spare him the almost hourly annoyance of crowds invading his presence. If he traveled in an ordinary day or Pullman coach, he'd be surrounded by a mob from the middle of September to the middle of November. He'd not be able to open his mouth for a morsel of food without the mob noting the action and measuring the mouthful. If Mrs. Taft did not suffer a return of nervous prostration inside of three days, under such conditions, she would be more than human. Therefore, and for these reasons alone, the President has told his subordinates to figure on a private car for him "if" the trip is made.

When the subject of the coast-to-coast trip was first considered by the president two or three months ago, the railroad men, who were asked to give an estimate of the expense involved in a special train was used all the way, figured that it would cost at least $17,000. So that now every time the subject of a special train is brought to the attention of Secretary Carpenter he turns pale.

Mr. Taft will be the fourth president to make a tour to the Pacific coast. His predecessors in this regard were Benjamin Harrison, McKinley and Roosevelt. Each of them made the swing around the circle in a comfortable special train, but it may be added that the public treasury was not called upon to pay the transportation bills. They were the guests of the railroads all the way, for the Hepburn law was then undreamt of.

The officials who are preparing the itinerary for President Taft are trying to so arrange his trip that he will be able to visit a large number of places at certain specific and interesting dates. As he has received several hundred urgent invitations and cannot possibly accept one tenth of the number, the task mapped out for the trip framers isn't half as easy as squaring the circle or signalling Mars. He has given his promise to visit San Francisco on October 19, and to look in on the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway convention at New Orleans, November 11th to 13th. The exposition will take him to Seattle, Washington, and he will try to visit other places on certain festive occasions. Secretary Carpenter announces, however, that if the president makes the trip he will not be able to stop at the little places, as he did during the campaign tour. His car will be hitched to through trains, most of the time, and if the people in the small towns want to see him, they'll have to get up early in the morning and go to the cities where his meetings are held.

(By F. H. Mitchell.)

The locals were defeated yesterday afternoon by the score of 6 to 1. The McCormicks of Los Angeles, were the ones to turn the trick.

"Yank" Coleman pitched good ball for the locals, but opportune hitting against the Yellow Sox' inability to swat the ball gave the Harvester men the game.

Clark, the flinger for the Angel City team, had so much of "nothing" that the Yellow Sox could not hit him safely. Only three hits were secured off his delivery, while nine bingles were found amongst Coleman's bends.

A new umpire was shoved onto the locals in the person of Mr. Seabee, but when it comes right down to the fine points of umpiring, Lane has Mr. Seabee left way behind in judgment, voice, and accuracy on balls and strikes.

AS TO PLUMBING

The plumbing is an important item in the construction of any building. If it is done RIGHT in the start, there will be no trouble. Let a poor job of plumbing be put in a building and there will be trouble as long as your building stands. It means much tearing up to locate and repair defects, once the building is completed. Let us figure on your plumbing and it will be done right.

MAKE IT SAFE AND SANE

Although the Fourth of July is not to be formally or publicly celebrated in Santa Ana this year, our people are none the less patriotic and are deeply interested in the preservation of the sentiments sought to be expressed by the "tumult and the shouting" so characteristic of the day. Many of the readers of the Register all over Orange county will participate in the celebration at Huntington Beach, and of course there will be individual observance of the day everywhere; so that we cannot fail to be interested in the nation-wide discussion as to what should be the character of a Fourth of July celebration.

It is claimed that more people have been killed and wounded in celebrating American independence than in gaining it. As we read the long list of casualties following each celebration of the Glorious Fourth, we must admit that there is some foundation for this claim. The list gets larger every year, and scattered over the country are thousands of silent mounds that testify to our reckless and misguided patriotism, and other thousands of the maimed and crippled who are living illustrations of the irrational methods used in Fourth of July celebrations. Besides these are millions of dollars gone up in smoke to further augment the general calamity. The day is becoming one of dread and unless something is done to mitigate its destruction of life and property it will become necessary to resort for protection to legal repression.

But there need be no such contingency if the proper thing is done by our civic bodies which generally have the day in hand. The small boy should, of course, be recognized on this day, and provided for in some way that assures the minimum of danger with the maximum of noise, and herein is food for thought. For one thing his operations should be confined within certain limits, so as not to endanger property nor disturb the sick. But further than that it is difficult to diagnose the case off hand. Let it be put up to our wise ones "with power to act," and let us have a patriotic but "safe and sane" celebration.

The official representatives of thirty-eight American cities at a meeting in Pittsburgh on May 14th, called attention to this subject, and recommended that special efforts be made to celebrate Independence Day without the use of the dangerous methods heretofore employed, recommending athletic games, pageants depicting matters of historical interest, and any other features that are not dangerous to life and limb. It is said that Detroit will turn the day from a bedlam to a festival, and even Chicago is moving for a sane Fourth. As it is now celebrated it means nothing so far as sentiment is concerned. There was once a time when the people gathered together and listened to the reading of the Declaration, and speeches appropriate to the occasion, and South Pasadena announces its determination to revive this old fashioned custom. This is as it should be, for such an observance has its lessons as well as its enjoyments. The day's exercises might be followed with fireworks at night which would round out the program delightfully for all concerned.

At all events, the Register would urge upon its readers, wherever or however they may celebrate, or whatever may be their views as to the proper character of the celebration, that they use their best endeavors to preserve the day from the horrors of fire and death.

"HANDLE WITH CARE"

The woman suffrage question has certainly reached an acute stage when its advocates, as suggested by Mrs. Belmont, propose to "take up arms" in its defense. This lady has just returned from England, where she absorbed the spirit of the suffragettes to such a degree that she is tempted to turn amazon and slay the men until they hoist the white flag. But if she is like other women and can shoot no straighter than she can throw, she would be more dangerous to friend than foe; and it is to be suspected that her attitude will prove her to be so in any event, as her suggestion is not likely to make friends for the cause of woman suffrage.

As an offset to Mrs. Belmont Bishop Doan is quoted as saying, that "woman is no more qualified to be a voter than a man is to be a wet nurse." But it is hardly likely that Mrs. Belmont, with her shot gun or Bishop Doan with his "wet nurse" idea will be the one to decide the question. As a matter of fact the elective franchise is of such supreme importance that it should be approached with caution and dealt with in a spirit of reverence, for in a political sense nothing is more sacred. As to the propriety of its being extended to women, it is a question on which the best of our statesmen differ. It is now on trial in several states, and if it proves a success will doubtless extend over the country, whether Mrs. Belmont fights or not, and regardless of Bishop Doan's "wet nurse" argument. It will sooner or later be up for the voters of California to again pass upon, and in the meantime it would be well for us to study the question from the standpoint of good government in the light of the experience of those states where it is in force.

THE HIGH SCHOOL PROPERTY CONTROVERSY CONTINUES Apace

Mr. Cary R. Smith Presents His Version Of The Proceedings Of The Arbitration Committee

There seems to be a decided difference of opinion as to the proceedings of the committee of arbitration in the High School matter. Last Thursday the Register published a statement as to the proceedings of the committee and the attitude of its members. This statement or report was based upon information given by the school board representatives in their report to the school board and its correctness has not been questioned by either of the representatives. Mr. Carey R. Smith, however, says the statement is incorrect and does him an injustice. He therefore requests that the following, prepared by him, be given place in our columns, and his request is cheerfully granted:

Mr. Smith's Statement

June 19, 1909.
 Editor Register:—While I deplore any discussion that may tend to arouse any unfriendly feeling between citizens and neighbors, yet an article published in Thursday's Register, to which my attention has just been called, compels me to correct some errors in said article and, very briefly, relate the controversy between the school board and the Smith estate.
 About two years ago when the matter of voting bonds for school purposes was before us, Mr. Otis Birch, executor of the Emma L. Smith Estate, was asked what he would sell the house and lot wanted for high school purposes for, and he agreed with them that the price should be $3500. After the bonds were recently voted, he asked for the same amount without the house, as there had been a material advance in all property in Santa Ana. The school board offered $2600; as a compromise Mr. Birch offered to take $3500 (the price of two years ago).

This offer was rejected and it was agreed to leave the matter to an arbitration committee. Mrs. Burdick, whose experience with the school board was similar to Mr. Birch's, consented, at a full meeting of said board, to join in the arbitration.

An agreement to this effect was signed by the school board, Mrs. Burdick and Mr. Birch. This agreement provided that the school board choose two men to represent them, and that Mrs. Burdick and Mr. Birch each choose a man to represent their interests; and that these four choose a fifth man to complete the arbitration committee. The first four men were expected to be the best men the several parties could secure to represent their respective sides of the disagreement; not unprejudiced men. Mr. Birch had asked me to represent him, and I consented to do so if the board did not object, and I could see no reason why they should. I was named before a full board and no objection was raised.

I met the other members of the committee the next morning at 10 o'clock. There was no organization of committee and no vote was taken at any of our three meetings. It was tacitly understood that we would endeavor to be unanimous in our choice of a fifth man, and when one named was objected to by any one he was passed, without a vote.

The first and second meetings consumed, as I remember, about an hour each and the third less than a half hour.

On my return home from these meetings I made a memorandum of what occurred at each, which I append. Where I say "we," I refer to Mr. Lyon and myself, but I now claim that all the concessions were offered by myself. I also append the names of the eleven men we offered—none of whom had been consulted by us, all but one unbiased so far as we knew, and he biased against us.

June 16th, 1909. Morning session of arbitration committee. We nominated seven unbiased men, none of whom had been interviewed by us. They nominate one man whom they admit to have interviewed. We claim fifth man should be strictly unbiased. They claim being unbiased not essential. We offer to put name of their man and one of ours in a hat and the first name drawn to be the fifth man. They ask for more time to consider. Adjourned until 3 p. m.

"Afternoon session: They propose two additional men, both of whom had been interviewed by them.

"We propose four additional men, all un-interviewed, none known to be biased but one, and he biased in their favor. We even offer to decide by lot; offer rejected. We offer that one of our men be called in whom we do not know will serve, and in the event of his consenting to serve will be the man chosen. Should he decline to serve, one of their men who has consented to serve be the fifth man. Offer rejected. We offer to allow Judge West, unofficially, to name the fifth man, offer rejected. They make no concessions.

"June 17. Four members of committee, at 10 a. m. Cogburn said he had been instructed by school board to ask resignation of Carey R. Smith from committee. Forgy and Cogburn both expressed themselves as having no objection to Carey R. Smith personally. Mr. Smith declined to re-

"The names proposed by us are: H. E. Smith, O. M. Robbins, J. W. Townner, Dr. Medlock, Harper Maley, Chris McNeil, D. H. Thomas, Fred Mansur, Ed. Parker, J. G. Mosbaugh, G. W. Minter."

I was prepared to make one more concession at the last meeting but was cut off by action of school board's representatives.

The Smith estate, in controversy, belongs to two orphan girls. It cost, in 1893, $2450 cash. Other property has doubled in value since that time. Building material and labor cost one-third more than then. Over $800 has been spent since purchase in permanent improvements. These girls do not want to sell. The school board who wants to purchase offer $2600. The guardian of these orphan children does not ask charity, but justice.

You Only Pay For Medicine Used In Case

to All Who Call at His Office This Week at the Rossmore Hotel—Will Charge Only for the Medicine and Treatment—Hundreds Coming From Surrounding Cities and States to Learn for Themselves the Healing Power of This Young Man

"The work of the Great Kamama in healing the sick is not confined to Santa Ana alone. Reports of his wonderful work have spread, and this morning before 9 o'clock the office was crowded with people from outside towns and cities, from Los Angeles, Ventura, Lompoc, San Jose and San Francisco. From everywhere, in fact, those seeking treatment are coming again to find health and happiness. Hundreds of testimonials serve to show how rich in results have been the new methods introduced by this great doctor. With the Syarthill treatment the Great Kamama has had much success in curing appendicitis, without operation. Gallstones, cancers, tumors and other abnormal growths are removed without the use of the knife, without drawing blood or causing pain. He treats all chronic diseases by new methods and restores health in many cases where others have failed. For the benefit of those who have not yet taken treatment the Great Kamama makes the liberal offer to treat for the mere cost of the medicine itself; he furnishes all medicine and treatments until the patient is cured. This offer holds good until June 26th only and will not be continued. Hundreds of people will take advantage of this liberal offer.

Office hours 10 to 12, 2 to 4 and 7 until 8. Consultation fee $1.00. (adv)

The Silent Partner
 A novel kitchen shower for a bride-to-be in contained in Woman's Home Companion for June. "The invitations were obliged to be verbal, as they suggested contributions for the necessary articles required for the Silent Partner, whose needs must be definitely considered. The result proves no end of fun.

"The skeleton of the Silent Partner was found to be a new broom. The head, made of paper, was tied to the top of the handle, with a natural-looking face drawn upon it with pen and ink. Below the head, in the place where shoulders are expected to appear, a piece of lath about one and one-half feet long had been nailed to the broom-handle.

Then with newspapers and twine a fairly well-shaped body was made. To each shoulder was fastened a pancake-shovel and fire shovel, tin spoons for arms, and these were covered with tea-towels pinned on in the form of bell sleeves. The Silent Partner wore a long gingham apron made with a bib, and upon her head was a sweeping cap. A cheese-cloth duster covered her shoulders as a fichu and fastened in front with a cookie-cutter for a 'sunburst.'

"Tea and coffee strainers were hung from each side of the head for earrings. The dusting-bag hung from one arm, while in the pocket of the apron was a bar of soap and a dish-cloth. The apronstrings were brought around in front and tied, while on the ends were fastened an egg-beater, paring-knife and nutmeg-grater.

"Above her head and pinned to the wall was a card bearing her name. No article for kitchen use was forgotten, all those not in sight being cunningly bestowed on the person of the Silent Partner."

CIGAR MAKERS 12 THE MAIL MEN 9

In one of the fastest and most exciting games ever played in Santa Ana the cigar men defeated the mail carriers by the score of 12 to 9.

Last year Uncle Sam's boys won by an overwhelming defeat, the final score being 18 to 4.

Brown was on the mound for the cigar manufacturers and the way he put the mail men down was great to see. Had it not been for errors the score would have been different. The cigar men made many costly errors but owing to superior batting defeated the postoffice boys by a score of 12 to 9.

The mail men were not up to their standard of play of last year, but soon expect to give the cigar men a great game. Cravath was umpire.

FOREST SERVICE CAN ENFORCE ALL GRAZING RULES AS HERETOFORE

The following letter received by Supervisor H. A. E. Marshall of San Diego, in charge of the Cleveland National Forest, is self-explanatory. It was written from Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:—On May 3, 1909, Judge Wellborn of the United States District court for the Southern district of California, Northern division, sitting at Fresno, sustained demurrers to indictments in the criminal cases of the United States against Cazajous, Grimaud, and Inda. The defendants were charged with having unlawfully grazed sheep without a grazing permit, upon the Sierra (S), now Sequoia National Forest. In connection with this case my attention has been called to a newspaper clipping referring to Judge Wellborn's decision as follows:

"The decision means, in effect, that from this time on there will be no restriction of the grazing which may be done in the hills, a matter of great interest to those who have herds and flocks in the mountains."

Another statement which appears in the clipping is as follows:

"Grazing will be permitted ad libitum on forest reserves until congress can enact new laws to cover the situation."

The language above quoted indicates an entirely erroneous conception of the effect of Judge Wellborn's decision. Judge Wellborn did not question the right of the Secretary of Agriculture to control grazing upon the national forests, nor his right to prohibit any unpermitted grazing. That the Secretary has such authority had been expressly held by a higher court, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals of the Ninth circuit, sitting at San Francisco, both in the case of Shannon vs. U. S., 160 Fed. Rep. 70, and in the earlier case of Dastervignes vs. U. S., 122 Fed.

Rep. 30. Indeed, the authority of these decisions was expressly recognized by Judge Wellborn. Those cases were, however, civil cases in which the United States was granted injunctions restraining the defendants from grazing trespass upon forest reservations, while the case of Cazajous, Grimaud and Inda, decided by Judge Wellborn at Fresno, were criminal prosecutions.

Judge Wellborn held that while the Secretary of Agriculture has full authority under existing laws of congress to promulgate regulations prohibiting grazing upon national forests except under permit, and while the forests can be protected against any violation of such regulations, by the bringing of civil actions and suits for injunctions, still a violation of the regulations cannot be held to be a crime. In other words, the decision of Judge Wellborn did not question the right of the Secretary of Agriculture to enforce by civil process proper observance of the grazing regulations, but held merely that violations of the regulations could not be made the basis of criminal action.

Under the Criminal Appeals Act of March 2, 1907, (34 Stat. 1246) the Attorney General has instructed the United States attorney at Los Angeles to sue out writs of error at once and have Judge Wellborn's decision reviewed by the Supreme court of the United States. This is the first opportunity the government has had to obtain a ruling upon this question by the Supreme court. The appeal will be prosecuted to as early a decision as possible.

Judge Wellborn's ruling is directly contrary to decisions by the following courts, which have held that violations of the Secretary's regulations are criminal and may be the subject of criminal prosecution:

U. S. District court, district of Idaho, in the case of U. S. vs. Domingo (152 Fed. Rep. 566), decision by Judge Beatty, March 14, 1907.

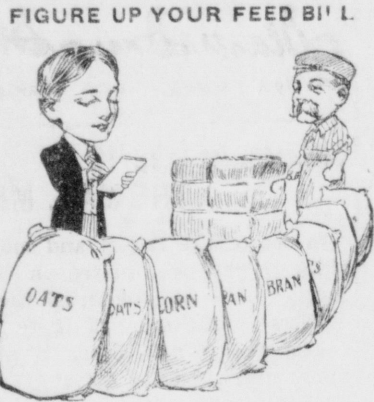

U. S. District court, northern district of California, in the case of U. S. vs. Dequiro (152 Fed. Rep. 568), decision by Judge DeHaven, October 2, 1906.

U. S. District court, South Dakota, in the case of U. S. vs. Bale (156 Fed. Rep. 687), decision by Judge Carland, September 3, 1907.

The Supreme court of Arizona, in the case of Dent vs. U. S. (76 Pac. Rep. 455), opinion by Chief Justice Kent.

United States Attorney General John W. Griggs also held (22 Opinions of Attorneys-General, 266) that any violation of the grazing regulations constitutes a crime and may be prosecuted and punished as such.

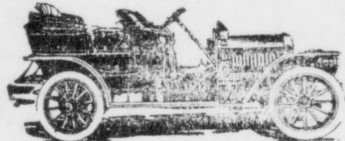

As heretofore, the grazing regulations will continue to be vigorously enforced upon every forest. Any willful violation will be at once reported by the forest officers and prompt action will be taken. Past experience has shown that only upon very rare occasions indeed, is court action necessary. The acknowledged justice and propriety of the grazing regulations have generally appealed to the sense of fairness of forest users, with the result that willing compliance with, and hearty co-operation in the enforcement of, the regulations, have been the rule, and cases of willful violations have been of rare occurrence. Where court action is found necessary, it has always been and will continue to be the rule of the forest service to avoid criminal prosecution if possible, and to rely upon remedy by civil action. However, under Judge DeHaven's decision in U. S. vs. Dequiro, above referred to, there is no reason why criminal prosecutions may not, in proper cases, be brought in the United States District court for the northern district of California, at San Francisco. It is proper also to call attention to the fact that, pending the appeal from Judge Wellborn's ruling, there has been no final determination that it is not a crime to willfully violate the grazing regulations, and if in any case fla-

Whether our scientists succeed in talking with Mars or run automobile races on the rings of Saturn, the Fourth Street Garage, Santa Ana, will always be on top with the REO.

The above statement CAN BE VERIFIED by any who will take the trouble to investigate it.

In a recent advertisement of one of our competitors we notice the announcement that he handles four makes of autos and sixteen different models; also that he has sold 26 cars this season. In bold display type he asks, "CAN YOU BEAT IT?" We answer:

"YES, WE CAN BEAT IT!"

We have been too busy to think much about the matter, but since the question is asked, we have taken the trouble to count up and find a total of

52-REOS SOLD THIS SEASON IN ORANGE COUNTY-52

Now in order that the public may be informed as to who has been making the automobile sales in this county we suggest that every dealer in the county publish the list of his sales for the season, as we are doing. In our humble opinion it would be mighty interesting reading; as it would show just exactly the number of cars sold in the county.

Below is the list of the 52 purchasers of Reos for the season of 1909:

Three Boys Received the Scare of Their Lives and a Fine of $5.00 Apiece

That the city officers are determined to enforce the regulation that fireworks must be saved for July 5th was duly impressed upon the minds of three boys in City Recorder' Wilson's court this morning. Saturday night Officer Murray arrested R. E. Thomas, Harry Mix and Ben Kescher, was asking Dad Booster where he could find a good hattery and the old man said, "There's nothing to it but The Wardrobe."

A TOURIST

Maybe you'll think that is stretching the long bow but if you'll walk into The Wardrobe and see the new nifty sailors and genuine Panamas and Stetson crushers on dress parade in there, you'll say with me—"Go to it."

BEN THE BOOSTER,
with
The Wardrobe
UTTLEY & MEAD
111 E. Fourth, Santa Ana

having caught them shooting off fireworks on Sycamore street.

This morning the three boys were before the city recorder. The ordinance was read to them. The judge overlooked a line when he reached the portion concerning the penalty for the violation of the ordinance, and by reason of that omission the judge stated that offenders should be fined not less than $100.

The three boys opened their eyes in consternation. To tell the exact truth, they looked "real scared." One of them was so badly scared at the vision of a fine of $100 or a stay in jail that his eyelids quivered as though someone had squirted some water in his eye.

However, the judge discovered his mistake, and let it be known that $100 was the maximum fine instead of the minimum.

This news brought forth a sickly smile or two from the accused. They pleaded guilty to the charge of shooting firecrackers without having a permit from the proper authorities so to do, and the judge ordered that each boy be fined $5. The $15 was produced, and the boys went their ways, a wiser and a sadder trio.

CAR CRASHED INTO WAGON

A Driverless Milk Vehicle is Smashed up and Bathed in Jersey Cream

The 11 o'clock car out of Santa Ana last night struck a milk wagon at the corner of West Fourth and Flower streets. The wagon was demolished, but the two horses hitched to it came out of the collision without a scratch. The driver, Mansur, was in a yard delivering milk when the accident occurred.

The wagon was a new $150 wagon belonging to the Santa Ana Jersey Farm. Mansur had just started on his rounds with about 200 bottles of milk. He had delivered two when he ran into a house, allowing the team to proceed, as is the custom, while he did so. The horses evidently became excited on seeing the approaching car, and ran directly in front of it. The car struck the rear of the wagon. Broken spokes, smashed wagon and twisted tires were given a bath in milk and cream. Not a bottle was left unbroken. The harness was broken and the horses escaped.

The "Maxwell"

By virtue of Maxwell construction and light weight, the Maxwell runabout costs less than one cent a mile to maintain—less than any other car.

Experience, test and success are behind the Maxwell. In the purchase of a car without these qualities a buyer is apt to add the element of danger to poor service. A study of the situation will force the conclusion that the "Maxwell" stands supreme among the moderate, legitimately priced automobiles, pre-eminent the leader not only in that most essential qualification—reliability, but in all the qualities that constitute a satisfactory performance.
